

I signed up for the "do not call" list and I am still getting annoying phone calls...after 9:00 PM. If the telemarketers are complaining about not having a job, where did they work years ago when there were no telemarketers? Why would someone want a job that annoys people to the point some folks get down right rude to them? Keep the "do not call" list up and running...I wish it included the folks from the police and fire associations that keep calling me all the time. Add them to the list.
